Stay Out of the Courtroom: 5 Tips to Keep Your Business From Getting Sued

There's no way to guarantee that you won't be sued—but below are five important steps to reduce your chances of facing a lawsuit!

1) Create—and Use—Strong Contracts.

Rock-solid contracts that clearly spell out every element of your agreement are the best way to avoid a lawsuit. Work with an attorney to create clear, specific, legally-solid agreements that

2) Incorporate Your Business.

If you run your business as a sole proprietorship, your personal assets (like your home and your car) are vulnerable in the event that you're sued. To protect your personal property from a lawsuit against your business, work with an attorney to incorporate.

3) Standardize Company Policies & Procedures.

Creating, documenting, and implementing company policies and procedures helps you to avoid mistakes. As your business grows, this becomes more and more important, because it's impossible for the owner to supervise everything that's happening. Policies and procedures ensure that operations unfold the way they are supposed to.

4) Provide Top-Quality Customer Service.

Placing an emphasis on customer service is a great way to avoid lawsuits - because typically, a lawsuit starts as a misunderstanding or a mistake. When these issues go unresolved, an angry customer or vendor may ultimately feel that filing suit is the best way to resolve the situation. Proactive customer support dramatically reduces this risk.

5) Purchase Liability Insurance.

Depending on the nature of your business, there are various types of insurance that can protect you in the event of a lawsuit. Speak to your business attorney about which types of insurance make the most sense for your business.
